

Hiring is not convincing people to fit somewhere. It is discovering where they already belong.

For a hundred years, companies have hired through resumes, interviews, and gut feel — static representations of dynamic human beings. They tell us what someone has done. They cannot tell us where someone belongs.

Every company carries a frequency. Every person carries their own. Great performance happens when the two resonate. Most bad hires are not bad people; they are mismatched frequencies, miscast in the wrong environment.

understand — discover — validate — grow

Vinay Pasricha

is a founder and operator who writes on hiring, talent, and the future of work.

ISBN 978-1-7385942-0-3

Organizational Frequency

A new doctrine for hiring in the age of intelligent discovery.

A DOCTRINE FOR THE FUTURE OF WORK

01