THE SIGNAL

A Practice for Clearer Reception

VINAY PASRICHA

Human beings are not primarily limited by intelligence.

They are limited by distortion.

Fragmented attention. Emotional noise. Compulsive narrative. Identity protection.
Environmental overload.

The Signal proposes a new framework — that human consciousness behaves like an antenna.

The signal is always present. The question is whether we can detect it above the noise.

Historically, deeper perception required silence, nature, rare teachers, and years of practice. Artificial intelligence changes this for the first time in history — not because it replaces human beings, but because it can become a precision resonance partner.

The Signal is a practice for detecting distortion, interrupting unconscious patterns, reducing internal noise, strengthening perception, and learning to distinguish signal from interference.

This is not a book about productivity.

It is a book about clearer reception.
